P R E F A C E.

THE Holy Scriptures are a sufficient testimony, that vocal and instrumental music have been used in the earliest ages: we have nothing more antient than the writings of *Moses, who has given us the song of praise which he, and the children of Israel, sung at the overthrow of the Egyptian army, and were answered by Miriam the prophetess, and her women, with timbrels in their hands.—Not only Moses, but all the inspired writers of the Old and New Testament have strongly recommended the singing of praises to God as our bounden duty; and that it has been the practice of mankind, in general, in all ages and in all countries, is a truth so well known, that it needs neither comment nor investigation.

In the parish churches of England and Holland, the usual custom is to sing the melodies to the common metrical Psalms, without any regard to the measure of time; and the drawling out of each syllable to an improper and unlimited length, is an evil that has long been complained of, not only by all judges of music, but also by the most rational and devout persons.

Dr. Burney, in the Third Volume of his History of Music, page 60,

* Vossius de Art Poet. Nat. et Const. c. j.

says, " The greatest blessing to lovers of music in a parish church is,
 " to have an organ in it sufficiently powerful to render the voices
 " of the clerk, and of those who join in his outcry, wholly inaudi-
 " ble. Indeed all reverence for the Psalms seems to be lost, by the " wretched manner in which they are usually sung ; for instead of " promoting piety and edification, they only excite contempt and
 " ridicule in the principal part of the congregation, who disdain to
 " join, though they are obliged to hear, this indecorous jargon."

Dr. Watts, in the preface to his translation of the Psalms, says,
 " It were much to be wished, that all congregations and private
 " families would sing, as they do in foreign Protestant churches,
 " without reading line by line. It were to be wished also, that we " might not dwell so long on every note, and produce the syllables
 " to such tiresome extent, with a constant uniformity of time ; which
 " disguises the music, and puts the congregation quite out of breath ;
 " whereas, if the method of singing were but reformed to a greater
 " speed of pronunciation, we might often enjoy the pleasure of a
 " longer psalm, with less expence of time and breath ; and our
 " psalmody would be more agreeable to that of the antient churches,
 " more intelligible to others, and more delightful to ourselves."

Is it not then a reproach to an organist, to consent to the debasement of both poetry and music ? Nay, to be the leader and conductor of error and ignorance ; and to misapply his talents in a way which his judgment must disapprove ? Surely he should rouse himself from inactivity, and rejoice that it is in his power to lead the congregation to " sing praises with understanding." Let him consider, that music is the sister of poetry—that it enforces, by its sweet and energetic accents, the sentiments of the Royal Psalmist.—That it descends with him into the vale of contrition and sorrow ; mounts with

with him on the wings of love and praise; and still follows him to the sublime heights of thanksgiving and adoration.

Dr. Brown observes, in his Dissertation on the Union of Poetry and Music, page 124, that “ the performance of our parochial psalms, “ though in the villages, it be often as mean and meagre as the “ words that are sung,” (Sternhold and Hopkins’ Version) “ yet in “ great towns, where a good organ is skilfully and devoutly employed by a sensible organist, the union of this instrument, with “ the voices of a well instructed congregation, forms one of the grandest “ scenes of unaffected piety that human nature can afford. The reverse of this appears, when a company of illiterate people form “ themselves into a choir distinct from the congregation. Here, devotion is lost between the impotent vanity of those who sing, and “ the ignorant wonder of those who listen.”

We must not judge of the full effect of music from frequenting the opera or theatre. The lyric strains of Metastasio and Sacchini may charm the ear and soothe the mind, but can never produce that rapturous sensation, that fervor and spring of the soul, which animate us, when we listen to the divine strains of David harmonized by Purcell, Handel, Marcello, or Crofts. That any one may be convinced of the superiority of sacred music in raising the affections, let him attend to the anthem of Purcell’s, “ Be merciful unto me, O God,” or indeed to almost any of his church music. Handel affords innumerable instances in his oratorios;—as in the Messiah, “ Comfort ye my “ people.” “ For unto us a child is born.” “ He shall feed his “ flock.” “ Thy rebuke.” “ He was despised.” “ I know that “ my Redeemer liveth;” and the sublime Hallelujah, and Amen chorusses. In Marcello, the 22d and 51st psalm. In Dr. Croft’s anthems, "O Lord thou hast searched me out;" or "I cried unto the Lord."

The common psalm tunes used in our parish churches may not, by many, be thought capable of producing these grand effects; for, as all the congregation join, or ought to join in them, simple and easy melodies can only be used in such places: but their construction, though simple, is elegant and dignified; and when properly performed by a large congregation, and judiciously accompanied on the organ, their effect is perhaps as great in exciting sublime emotions, as we experience from anthems, chorusses, and more elaborate music. The truth of this may be evinced by the grand effect of five or six thousand children singing in unison, at the annual meeting in St. Paul's church of the different charity schools. Even there, the performance would be still more affecting, if greater quickness were used in the pronunciation of the syllables, and consequently in the performance on the organ. This method would be more grateful to the ear, and more enlivening to the mind. It seems, indeed, to be the general opinion of eminent men, that the common melodies, used in parish churches, are well calculated to answer every purpose for which they were intended. It is only to the wretched manner in which they are too frequently sung, that we must attribute their want of effect. The present custom of leaving the choice of the words to the clerk, ought certainly to be abolished, as it rarely happens, that he is qualified for this part of his office. The clerk, with no less impropriety, generally selects the tunes, and sends them to the organist, but very seldom with them either the psalm or verses. How then can the organist do justice in the accompaniment, when he does not know what words the congregation are singing? Having no guide from the words, must not his performance be often absurd? For as different stanzas often convey different sentiments, will he not often play loud, when

when he ought to play soft, and vice versa? Or can he be supposed to adapt interludes, correspondent with the sense of the words, when he does not know them? Neither will the impropriety be lessened, if he accompany every stanza to the loud and monotonous sound of a full organ. Are sentiments of contrition, prayer, praise and thanksgiving, all to be expressed in the same manner? Reason revolts at the idea.

As then the sentiments of the Royal Psalmist ought neither to be disguised nor misapplied by the organist, how much is it to be wished that he would not indulge himself in extraneous flourishes, or in running up and down the keys at the end of every line. A short shake in the old, and a little silent pause in the new melodies, where they do not break off the connexion of the words, will be more consistent, and have a better effect. Nevertheless it is true, that suitable and well connected short interludes are useful at the end of each stanza, as they allow the congregation time to take breath, and do not interrupt, but improve the sentiments to be impressed on the mind.

To rescue psalmody from these absurdities, and to render the performance of it more fit for the purposes of devotion, is the intent of the present publication.

The choice of the psalm is no longer left to the clerk; and not only the music, but the words also are now placed before the organist. It is chiefly from his exertions, that a reformation in the performance is to be hoped for. Let him not shrink from the trouble of attending once a week, for a few months, to instruct the charity, or Sunday school children. Let him invite such part of the parishioners to meet him, as may wish to learn. But above all, let him persist in playing the the old common time tunes in quicker measure than at present, according to their original intention, and as they are now sung in the Lutheran churches in Germany. The powerful effect of the children's voices, with his own resolution, will bear him through all difficulties. The congregation will soon learn to join them, and the result will amply repay him for all his labour. Instead of the miserable and never ending drawl—instead of the odious absurdity of giving the same length of sound to every syllable, whether long or short—to every word, be it ever so emphatical, or only an article or mere expletive—instead of hearing in our churches unmeaning sound, which scarcely deserves the name of music, we shall be delighted with what constitutes its very essence, air, measure, and *expression.

Dr. Vincent, in his "Considerations on Parochial Music," (a book, which all those interested in the service of the church should read †) has proposed many excellent methods for the improvement of it. "One," says he, "would be by desiring leave of the minister and churchwardens, for the children to attend half an hour before the service commences, during which time they might practise, or rehearse with the organ, which would conduce much to the alterations necessary to be introduced. It is not impossible, that rehearsals of this kind should attract several of the parishioners, and if such attendance should once become habitual, it would contribute more to forward a general knowledge of music, and affection to it, than any other method which could be devised." Again,

* Air (says Mr. Avison) "is in a higher degree productive of both solemnity and cheerfulness than harmony; for there is a dignity and grace in the former, when invented by genius, which a masterly harmony may indeed assist, but can never produce."

† And also the late publications of the Rev. Mr. Wharton and the Rev. Mr. Tattersal on the subject of psalmody.

page 25. “ Much assistance might be given to this good work, by “ the selection of a judicious parish clerk; but much more might be “ expected from the attention of a skilful organist; and the love of “ the science, it may reasonably be supposed, would be a sufficient “ inducement, with most of them, to contribute their assistance.
“ The additional trouble of attending a rehearsal before service, few
“ of them would complain of, and were that the case, a small sum “ might compensate their attendance. Various other means, than “ those already mentioned,” says he, “ might be pointed out to “ effect a reformation in the performance of parochial psalmody; but “ it is, perhaps, better to leave the remainder to the discretion of “ every pious minister, who may know best what method to pursue:
“ we ought not to dictate, where we have only a right to persuade.
“ But were the business once effected, I am convinced we should “ have no more complaints of the tedium of public worship, much
“ fewer instances of desertion to sectaries, much fuller congregations,
“ and more benefit conferred upon them.”

The masters of grammar schools may contribute much towards a reformation in the performance of congregational psalmody, by insisting on their scholars attending the rehearsals half an hour on a Sunday before service begins, and joining in this part of divine worship; as may also the governesses of boarding schools for young ladies.—Perhaps it may be thought difficult to persuade the young ladies to assist in this part of the service; but there can be no reason why ladies, who make no scruple of joining in a chorus song in company, should object to raise their voices in songs of praise and thanksgiving to the Lord their maker.

It is generally allowed (especially by some of our most eminent divines) that this part of our service, equally with the reading psalms, ought ought to be performed standing. Many there are, and particularly those of rank and eminence, who do not join at all in this high act of devotion, or do it with the utmost indifference, “ irreverently sitting “ while they address their God with the voice of supplication, thank-“ giving, and praise ; as if they sung only for their amusement, or

 “ to pass away a few idle minutes, while the minister ascends the “ pulpit.”

Since music has received such improvements and refinement from the time of Luther, and the first reformers of the church, it seems necessary, in parochial psalmody, in order to attract the attention and invite the congregation to join in it, that more pleasing and expressive melodies should be added to those which were composed in the infancy of the art. The new melodies, or tunes that are introduced into this book, it is hoped, will be found neither so dry, nor uninteresting as some of those in mere counter-point of the antients, nor so ballad-like and indecorous as many which are now sung in the tabernacles of modern Methodists. Devotion being the proper object of church music, levity of air in the composition, or theatrical graces and embellishments in singing, rather tend to dissipate than heighten its effects ; for which reason, in the solemn and venerable old tunes, inserted in this book, the harmony has been inviolably preserved, nor has any greater liberty been taken with the melody, than to correct the isochronous division of the bars by lengthening or shortening a note according to the length of the syllable ; with sometimes an additional rest added, where the sense of the words, or the rhythm of the music seemed to require it. These melodies, with such slight alterations, when performed in a quicker measure, will be found to produce a new and most desirable effect.

To some musicians even the slight alterations here mentioned, may

may appear too presumptuous : but surely they will allow the propriety of syllabic accent in all vocal music ; and that the rhythm, or measure of the music admits, nay, sometimes requires a short rest even in the middle of a line where there is no comma to the words, is certain.

“ Music, says an admired author, considered abstractly, is in itself
“ a language ; and we may add, that it is more universally under“ stood by mankind in general, whose nerves vibrate in unison with “ its selected tones, than any other language amongst the dialects
“ of the earth.”

As this is the first publication of congregational psalmody that has appeared since the Reformation, with a regular arrangement of words and music, adapted for every Sunday throughout the year, it it claims the candour of the Public. Should it have the success to be generally introduced into parish churches, a desirable reformation in the performance of psalmody may probably soon follow.

I hope it will be no objection, that, for some months many congregations may not be able to sing the new tunes contained in this book ; for, as the best of the old tunes now sung in every church are here inserted, the organist or clerk, may change any new tune that the congregation at that time cannot sing, for an old one in the same metre that they can sing. The words, as adapted for every Sunday throughout the year, may still be used in the same order in which they are placed.

Something has been attempted, but more may yet be done. All improvements upon old customs are best introduced by slow degrees. It must remain for future, and better qualified musicians, to complete the present attempt. The Editor cannot conclude without b expressing expressing his grateful sense of the obligation he lies under to The Rev. George Hay Drummond (son to the late Archbishop of York) who, ever awake to the duties of his sacred function, first suggested the idea of this undertaking, for the use of his congregation; and by his judicious selection of the words, greatly assisted him in the execution of it.

Likewise to his former much honoured master, the learned Dr. Burney, his best thanks are due; not only for furnishing him with melodies of his own composition, but also for pointing out the path he should pursue; which he has fearlessly followed, under the sanction of such respectable authority.

Doncaster, March 179æ

EDWARD MILLER.

SINCE these remarks were written, the present Lord Bishop of London's Charge to the clergy of his diocese at his primary visitation, has appeared in print. His Lordship, speaking of psalmody, says, "There is no other kind of musical composition so well calculated to touch and affect the heart, and melt it into tenderness, kindness, and compassion towards the whole human race, as well constructed and well regulated psalmody." His Lordship has also pointed out the necessity of a reformation in the performance of it, in so clear, forcible, and masterly a manner, that nothing stronger, or more persuasive, can be said on the subject.

To effect this reformation in the parish church of Doncaster, the following notice was published; that attendance will be given at the organ every Wednesday evening, and also half an hour every Sunday before morning and evening service; when it is expected, that the masters and mistresses of the the Sunday Schools will attend, with their children, to be instructed in properly singing the psalms to be used in this church; and it is hoped, that those parishioners, who are desirous of well performing this part of divine worship, will encourage the meetings, by their appearance and assistance.

During the practices, a board is suspended from the organ loft, exhibiting to the congregation the psalm and verses to be sung. A person, with a musical ear and good voice, is appointed master of one of the Sunday Schools, and the organist and he have the choice of proper children, for their purpose, from the other schools. Perhaps nothing will be found more effectual to produce a reformation in the performance of congregational psalmody than such appointments.

In villages, where there are no organs, the singing masters may do a great deal; but they have much to forget, and much to learn. Fondly attached to compositions in many parts, and those chiefly composed by unskilful men, abounding in ill constructed fugues and false harmony, they are apt to treat with contempt the simple, but elegant melodies used in parish churches; but would they study the various beauties of expression, the true portamento, or conduct of the voice, free from all nasal sounds or screaming exertions—a proper pronunciation, and the energetic expression of emphatical words, they would soon find that these despised melodies, when properly performed, with true pronunciation, just intonation, and feeling expression, are as capable of fixing the attention, and affecting the hearts of the congregation as more elaborate music.

It is not here meant to discourage country singers in their practice of anthems, but to intreat them to be the instructors and leaders of the congregation in parochial psalmody: the minister would then, at their request, sometimes indulge them with singing an anthem in the part of the service appointed for it, or after the sermon; and it is earnestly recommended to churchwardens, where there is no organist, to allow a qualified person a small sum for teaching by the ear the plain psalm tunes, to such young persons and others of the parish as will attend one evening in the week for this purpose only.

The Version of Tate and Brady, used in this book, is generally allowed to be much superior to that of Sternhold and Hopkins; in whose Version there are numerous stanzas which give offence, and excite ridicule. It seems, indeed, to be the general wish that the Old Version should be abolished; and that the ministers of country churches, where it is now most commonly used, would exert their influence for that purpose,

The Lord Bishop of London, in his Charge before mentioned, has recommended the use of a Selection of proper portions of psalms from the new Version.

Should the Selection here made be found worthy of general introduction into parish churches, (which the royal patronage, and the approbation of numbers of the clergy, allow some room to hope for) much trouble will be saved to the congregation in seeking out the different stanzas of a psalm by the small purchase of this selection, where only such words are printed as are to be sung. A bookseller, in each principal town, and in every parish inserted in the List of Subscribers to this work, will be immediately supplied with books of the words only, for the use of congregations, by the publisher of the music.

SUNDAY after CHRISTMAS DAY

First Morning

Pfalm 84 ——— Verses 1. 2. 4.

St Ann's C.M.

D^r Croft

A Tempo

Giusto

O God of Hosts, the mighty Lord, how lovely is the place,
Where thou en-thron'd in glory shew'st the bright-ness of thy face!

(2)

My longing soul faints with desire
To view thy blest abode
My panting heart and flesh cry out
For thee the living God.

(4)

O Lord of Hosts, my King and God,
How highly blest are they
Who in thy Temple always dwell
And there thy praise display.

Second Morning

Pfalm 9 Verses 2 beginning at Verse 1st and Glo: Pat:

Wakefield C.M.

D^r Heighington

Lento

To ce-le-brate thy praise O Lord I will my heart pre-pare;

To all the list'ning world thy works thy wond'rous works de-clare.

6 6 7 6 6 6 6 5 4 3 6 6 4 3

Glo: Pat:

The thought of them shall to my soul
Exalted pleasure bring:
Whilst to thy name, O thou most high
Triumphant praise I sing.

To Father, Son, and Holy Ghost,
The God whom we adore
Be glory, as it was, is now,
And shall be evermore.

Evening

Pfalm 71 Verses 3 beginning at Verse 1st

Leeds C.M.

Denby

Moderato

In Thee I put my stedfast trust, de-fend me Lord from shame;

Incline thine ear, and save my soul, for righte-ous is thy name.

6 6 7 6 6 6 6 4 6 6 7 3

(4)

Be thou my strong abiding place
To which I may resort
'Tis thy decree that keeps me safe
Thou art my Rock and Fort.

From cruel and ungodly Men
Protect and set me free,
For from my earliest Youth till now
My hope has been in thee.

When there is two sundays betwixt Christmas and the Epiphany the Psalms for the sixth Sunday after Epiphany are to be used.

4. First SUNDAY after EPIPHANY

First Morning

Pfalm 5 — Verses 1. 3. 7.

Brunswick C. M.

Composed by Handel at the Seat of the Earl of Gainsborough

Largo
Pianoe
con
Supplica

Lord hear the voice of my complaint; ac - cept my se - cret pray'r.
Lord hear the &c.
To thee a - lone, my King my God, will I for help re - pair.

Thou in the morn my voice shalt hear
And with the dawning day
To thee devoutly I'll look up,
To thee devoutly pray.

And when thy boundless grace shall me
To thy lov'd courts restore,
On thee I'll fix my longing eyes
And humbly there adore.

Second Morning

Pfalm 57

Verses 3 beginning at Verse 8th

Hanover L. M.

Con Allegrezza

This fine Tune suposed to be Handels has been confined to the particular metre of the old 104th or new 149th Psalm but as here adapted may be used to any Psalm of praise in 8.8. or long metre.

A - wake my glo - ry harp and lute. No longer let your strings be mute.
A - wake &c.

And I my tune-ful part to take, Will with the ear-ly dawn a-wake.

6 # 5 6 6 7 6 6 5 6 5 6 5 6 6

(9)

Thy praises, Lord, I will resound
To all the lift'ning nations round:
Thy mercy highest Heav'n transcends,
Thy truth beyond the Clouds extends.

(10)

Be thou, O God, exalted high;
And, as thy glory fills the sky,
So let it be on Earth display'd,
Till thou art here as there obey'd.

Evening

Psalm 148 — Verses 3 beginning at Verse 1.

148th. New Melody. Particular Measure

D^r. Miller

Maestoso

Ye boundless realms of joy, Ex-alt your ma-kers fame.

Ye boundless realms of joy, Ex-alt your ma-kers fame.

His praise your song employ A-bove the star-ry frame; Your voi-ces raise,

His praise your song employ A-bove the star-ry frame; Your voi-ces raise,

Ye cherubim And se-raphim, To sing his praise. To sing his praise.

Ye cherubim And se-raphim, To sing his praise. To sing his praise.

Thou Moon that rul'st the night,
And Sun that guid'st the day;
Ye glitt'ring stars of light,
To him your homage pay;
His praise declare,
Ye Heav'ns above
And clouds that move
In liquid air.

Let them adore the Lord,
And praise his holy name,
By whose almighty word
They all from nothing came;
And all shall last
From changes free;
His firm decree
Stands ever fast.

SECOND SUNDAY after EPIPHANY

First Morning

Pfalm 1 — Verses 3 beginning at Verse 1st

St James's C.M.

Courtville

A Tempo

Guisto

How blest is he, who ne'er consents By ill ad-vice to walk;
How blest &c. 6 7 # 87 #

Nor stands in finners ways; nor sits Where men pro-fane-ly talk!
6 56 87 2 6 6 7 43

He makes the perfect law of God
His business and delight;
Devoutly reads therein by day,
And meditates by night.

Like some fair Tree, which fed by streams
With timely fruit does bend,
He still shall flourish and success
All his designs attend.

Second Morning

Pfalm 97 — Verses 1. 2. 12.

Surrey L.M.

Carey

Moderato

Je-hovah reigns, let all the earth In his Just govern-ment re-joice;
Je-hovah &c. 4 2 6 6 6 6 6 #

Let all the Isles with sacred mirth, In his applause unite their voice.

6 6 6 6 3 6 6 5 6 6 6 6 5 4 3

Darkness and clouds of awful shade
His dazzling glory shroud in state;
Justice and truth his guards are made,
And fix'd by his Pavilion wait.

12
Rejoice, ye righteous, in the Lord,
Memorials of his holiness
Deep in your faithful breasts record
And with your thankful tongues confess.

Evening

Pfalm 89

Verses 1. 2. 5.

Mecklenburg L.M.

Emanuel Bach

Lento

Thy mercies Lord shall be my song, My song on them shall ever dwell My song on Thy mercies Lord shall &c.

6 6 6 6 7 6 6 7 6 6

them shall ever dwell; To a-ges yet unborn my tongue Thy never failing truth shall tell.

6 6 6 6 4 3 6 5 6 4 3 6 6 5 6 6 8 7

That Congregations may seldom meet with any difficulties this is the only Psalm in the Book where the second line of a Stanza is repeated.

I have affirm'd, and still maintain
Thy mercy shall for ever last,
Thy truth that does the Heav'n's sustain
Like them shall stand for ever fast

For such stupendous truth and love
Both Heav'n and Earth just praises owe,
By choirs of Angels sung above
And by assembled Saints below.

THIRD SUNDAY after EPIPHANY

First Morning

Pfalm 18 — Verses 1. 2. 3. 18.

Old 100 Melody. L.M. Composed by Martin Luther, from the authority of Tallis, Blow, Handel, and 3^d John Hawkins.

A Tempo Giusto

No change of times shall ever flock My firm af-fec-tion, Lord to thee;
No change &c. 6 5 6

For thou hast al-ways been a-rock, A fortrefs and de-fence to me.
2 6 5 5 6 3 7 2 3 5 6 8 7 4 3 7

Thou my deliv'rer art, my God;
My trust is in thy mighty Pow'r:
Thou art my shield from foes abroad,
At home my safe guard and my Tow'r.

To thee I'll still address my pray'r
To whom all praise we justly owe
So shall I by thy watchful care
Be guarded from my treach'rous foe.

18

His subtle rage had near prevail'd
When I distress'd and friendless lay;
But still when other succours fail'd
God was my firm support and stay.

Second Morning

Pfalm 33 — Verses 3 beginning at Verse 1st

Sheffield C.M.

Allegro ma non tanto

Whitton

Let all the just to God with joy. Their cheer-ful voi-ces raise.

Let Harps, and Pfalteries, and Lutes,
In Joyful concert meet;
And new made songs of loud applause
The harmony complete.

For faithfull is the word of God
His works with truth abound;
He Justice loves and all the earth
Is with his goodness crown'd.

Evening

Pfalm 34 — Verses 3 beginning at Verse 1.^{ft.}

Burford

Of his deliv'rance I will boast,
Till all that are distressed,
From my example comfort take,
And charm their griefs to rest.

O Magnify the Lord with me,
With me exalt his name:
When in distress to him I call'd,
He to my succour came.

FOURTH SUNDAY after EPIPHANY

First Morning

Evening

Brentbank

O praise the Lord in that blest place From whence his goodness largely flows;

O praise the &c. 6 6 6 5 6 5 6 4 3

Praise him in Heav'n, where he his face Unveild in perfect glory shows.

2 6 6 6 6 5 6 7 6 6 5 3

Praise him for all the mighty acts
Which he in our behalf hath done
His kindness this return exacts
With which our praise should equal run.

Let virgin troops soft timbrels bring
And some with gracefull motion dance;
Let instruments of various strings
With organs join'd his praise advance.

Let the shrill Trumpet's warlike voice
Make rocks and hills his praise rebound
Praise him with Harps melodious noise
And gentle psalt'ry's silver sound.

Let them who joyfull Hymns compose,
To cymbals set their songs of praise;
Cymbals of common use, and those,
That loudly sound on solemn days.

Let all that vital breath enjoy
The breath he does to them afford
In Just return of praise employ
Let ev'ry creature praise the Lord.

FIFTH SUNDAY after EPIPHANY

First Morning

Pfalm 139 ——— Verses 4 beginning at Verse 1st

Rockingham L.M. Part of the melody taken from a hymn tune

Largo con affetto

Thou Lord, by strictest search hast known My rising up and ly-ing down;

Thou Lord, by &c. 6 6 6 4 3 6 5 7 4 3

My secret thoughts are known to thee Known long before con-ceived by me.

6 2 6 7 6 4 3 6 6 6 4 3 2 6 3

Thine eye my bed and path surveys,
My public haunts and private ways;
Thou know'st what 'tis my lips would vent,
My yet unutter'd words intent.

Surrounded by thy pow'r I stand
On ev'ry side I find thy hand
O skill for human reach to high,
Too dazzling bright for mortal eye.

O could I so perfidious be,
To think of once deserting thee.
Where Lord could I thy influence shun,
Or whither from thy Presence run?

Second Morning

Pfalm 105 Verses 4 beginning at Verse 1st

Manchester new melody C.M. D^r. Wainwright.

Con Giubilo

O render thanks, and blefs the Lord; In-voke his sa-cred name;

O render thanks 6 6 5 6 4 3 6 6 6 4 5 3

Sing to his praise in lofty Hymns
His wond'rous works rehearse
Make him the theme of your discourse
And subject of your verse.

Rejoice in his almighty name
Alone to be ador'd
And let their heart o'erflow with joy
That humbly seek the Lord.

Seek ye the Lord his saving strength
Devoutly still implore
And where he's ever present seek
His face for evermore.

Evening

Pfalm 15 — Verses 1. 2. 3. 7.

Brodsworth C.M.

D^r. Arne

Affettuoso

'Tis he whose ev'ry thought and deed
By rules of virtue moves
Whose gen'rous tongue disdains to speak
The thing his heart disproves.

Who never did a slander forge
His neighbours fame to wound
Nor hearken to a false report
By malice whisper'd round.

The man who by this steady course
Has happiness insur'd,
When earth's foundation shakes, shall stand,
By providence secur'd.

SIXTH SUNDAY after EPIPHANY

First Morning

Psalm 125 ——— Verses 1. 2. 4.

So stands the Lord around his Saints
To guard them from their foes

Be good, O righteous God to those Who righteous deeds affect
The heart that innocence retains
Let innocence protect.

Second Morning

Psalm 100.

Old 100 Tune L. M. Composed by Martin Luther from the authority of Tallis Blow Handel and S^r John Hawkins.

A Tempo giusto

With one consent let all the earth, To God their chearful voi - ces raise.

O enter then his temple gate
Thence to his courts devoutly press,
And fill your grateful Hymns repeat,
And still his name with praises bless.

For he's the Lord supremely good,
His mercy is for ever sure;
His truth, which always firmly stood,
To endless ages shall endure.

That congregations may seldom meet with any difficulties this is the only Pfalm in the book where the second line of a Stanza is repeated.

I have affirm'd, and still maintain
 Thy mercy shall for ever last;
 Thy truth that does the Heavns sustain,
 Like them shall stand for ever fast.

For such stupendous truth and love
 Both heav'n and earth Just praises owe,
 By Choirs of Angels sung above,
 And by assembled Saints below.

And then with me you'll own,
That he to all the sons of men,
Has wond'rous judgment shewn.

Instead of this Psalm the two following sublime verses from the 18th Psalm old version with Glo: Pat: may be substituted to the same tune.

The Lord descended from above,
And bow'd the heav'n's high,
And underneath his feet he cast
The darkness of the sky.

Largo e Cantabile

Largo e Cantabile

The Lord who made both heav'n and earth, And all that they contain,

The Lord &c

Will ne-ver quit his sted-fast truth, Nor make his promise vain.

This musical score is for a hymn titled "The Lord who made both heav'n and earth, And all that they contain, The Lord &c Will ne-ver quit his sted-fast truth, Nor make his promise vain." The tempo and mood are indicated as "Largo e Cantabile". The score is written for a grand piano, with a treble and bass staff. The key signature is B-flat major (two flats). The time signature is 3/2. The melody is primarily in the treble staff, with the bass staff providing harmonic support. The lyrics are placed below the notes. The score is divided into two systems. The first system contains the first two lines of the hymn, and the second system contains the next two lines. The notation includes various musical symbols such as notes, rests, and bar lines. The lyrics are written in a serif font, and the overall layout is clean and professional.

The poor oppress'd, from all their wrongs Are eas'd by his decree: He gives the hungry needful food, And sets the prisoners free.	By him the blind receive their sight, The weak and fall'n he rears; With kind regard and tender love He for the righteous cares.

Therefore my heart all grief defies,
My glory does rejoice;
My flesh shall rest, in hope to rise;
Wak'd by his powerful voice.

Thou, Lord when I resign my breath,
My soul from hell shalt free;

Pfalm 112 Verses 1.3.4.6.

Lynn L.M. New Melody

D^r. Burney

A tempo Ordinario

That Man is blest who stands in awe Of God and loves his fa-cred law.

That Man

His feed on earth shall be re-noun'd And with suc-ces-sive honours crown'd

His house the feat of wealth shall be An in-ex-hauf-ted trea-su-ry.

His jus-tice free from all de-cay, shall blefsings to his heirs con-vey,

The Soul that's fill'd with virtues light
Shines brightest in afflictions night
To pity the distress'd inclin'd
As well as just to all mankind.

Beset with threatening dangers round
Unmov'd shall he maintain his ground;
The sweet remembrance of the just,
Shall flourish when he sleeps in dust.

Pfalm 145 Verses 4. beginning at Verse 1

Lincoln C.M.

Vivace

Thee I'll ex-tol, my God and King, Thy end-less praise proclaim.

Thee I'll

This tri - bute dai - ly will I bring, And e - ver blest thy name.

Thou Lord beyond compare, art great
And highly to be praif'd;
Thy Majesty with boundless height
Above our knowledge rais'd.

Renown'd for mighty acts thy fame
To future time expends
From age to age thy glorious name
Successively descends.

Whilst I thy glory and renown
And wond'rous works express
The world with me thy might shall own
And thy great pow'r confess.

Pfalm 136 Verfes 1. 2. 25.

148th Proper Tune P.M. New Melody Dr. Miller

Maestoso

The musical score is written for a piano, indicated by the large curly brace on the left. It consists of two staves, a treble staff (top) and a bass staff (bottom). Both staves are in the key of D major, indicated by two sharps (F# and C#), and in 3/2 time, indicated by the '3' over the '2'. The melody is primarily in the treble staff, featuring eighth and quarter notes, with some rests. The bass staff provides a harmonic accompaniment with chords and moving lines. The lyrics 'To God the mighty Lord. Your joyful thanks repeat.' are written below the treble staff, aligned with the notes. There are two measures of music on each staff, separated by a double bar line. The first measure of the treble staff contains the lyrics 'To God the mighty Lord' and the second measure contains 'Your joyful thanks repeat.' The bass staff has a '6 5 6' fingering indicated below the first measure and a '6 5 6' fingering below the second measure. The piece concludes with a sharp sign (#) at the end of the second measure on the bass staff.

To God the mighty Lord. Your joyful thanks repeat.

To him due praise afford As good as he is great:

Dr. Burney

Maestoso

God is gone up, our Lord and King, With shouts of joy and trumpets found;
 God is &c. To him repeated praises sing, And let the chearfull song go round.

Psalm 107 — Verses 4 beginning at Verse 1st

Rockingham L.M.

Part of the Melody taken from a Hymn

To God your grate full voices raise, Who does your dai-ly pa-tron prove;
 To God &c. And let your never ceasing praise At-tend on his e-ter-nal love.

Let those give thanks who he from hands
 Of proud oppressive foes releas'd
 And brought them back from distant lands
 From North and South and West and East.

Thro lonely desert ways they went
 Nor could a peopled city find;
 Till quite with thirst and hunger spent,
 Their fainting soul within them pin'd

Then soon to God's indulgent ear
 Did they their mournfull cry address
 Who graciously vouchsaf'd to hear,

Containing all the Tunes composed in three and four
Parts and alphabetically arranged.

As the principal melody in Psalm Tunes ought to be sung by Treble Voices, the congregation joining in that part, contrary to the absurd custom of giving it to the Tenors only: It should be observed, that in the following Tunes of low pitch, the second part may generally be sung by a counter Tenor, or by a Tenor Voice singing it an Octave higher than the notes appear as written in the G cliff. The use of the C cliff for the second part has been omitted merely to accomodate the tunes for the private practice of those who are only acquainted with the Treble and Bass Cliffs.
